Predictive Services Discussion:

Hot, daily record-setting temperatures of 100 to 115 °F and minimum relative humidity of 5-20% will continue across much of the lower elevations of Inland California, southern Great Basin, and Southwest, west of the Divide. Temperatures 10 to 15 degrees above normal will spread into the northern Intermountain West and West Slope as well. Poor relative humidity recovery will occur in the lower elevations and mid-slopes of the southern Great Basin, Mojave Desert, and Southwest west of the Divide. In addition, isolated dry thunderstorms are possible for central and western New Mexico to the Mogollon Rim, while isolated mixed wet and dry thunderstorms develop from northeast California and southeast Oregon into the northern and central Great Basin. Hot temperatures will return to much of Florida today with isolated thunderstorms across the southern half of the peninsula, while slightly cooler temperatures are likely for south Texas. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will form from the Appalachians to the East Coast today. Mild temperatures with isolated to scattered thunderstorms are forecast across much of Interior Alaska, while dry and warm conditions with land and sea breezes are expected across Hawai'i.
